How We Use Cookies

Cookies are used on this website to collect information about how you use the site and to measure its performance. This helps us understand which pages are most useful and allows us to improve or remove content where necessary.

Google Analytics

The website also uses Google Analytics, which provides us with insights into which areas of our site visitors find most useful or interesting. This enables us to improve our content and overall user experience. Google Analytics may collect information such as your approximate location (geolocation), IP address, device and browser type, and details of how you interact with the site.

When you first visit our site, a cookie consent message will appear to let you know that cookies are being used.

Google Analytics collects first-party cookies, device/browser data, IP addresses, and on-site activity to measure and report statistics about website usage. Users can disable cookies or delete individual cookies at any time through their browser settings.

Google also provides an optional browser add-on that, once installed and enabled, prevents Google Analytics from collecting data on any website you visit. Please note that this add-on only affects Google Analytics tracking.

Preferences

You can choose to allow or block cookies through your browser preferences, options, or tools. Blocking cookies may affect some features of the site.

General Information

We do not share your information with third parties for marketing purposes. However, Google Analytics processes cookie data on our behalf to provide usage statistics. We may also disclose information if required to do so by law.

If you have any questions, please contact us.
